| ❖ The consciousness of self [prise de conscience] of the rights of the human person   | 3  |
| Fr. Julio Meinvielle, Ph.D., S.T.D.   |    |
| I. The emancipation of the human person, based on the juridical order, or Kantianism infecting the Thomistic juridical understanding . . . . .   | 7  |
| II. The spiritual rights of the human person, or the virtual atheism of the Maritainian society . . . . .  | 25 |
| 1. There is a zone of activity in man, the particular or private, which comprises rights and material and moral duties, which only falls under the mediate jurisdiction of the state . . . . . | 26 |
| 2. There is a zone of public activity in man which falls under the state's immediate jurisdiction  | 28 |
| 3. All political societies should, even qua society, should render worship to the true God, and in the real economy they should proclaim the cult of the Roman Catholic Church                 | 31 |
| 4. As a consequence, it is false that there is a zone of exterior and public activity in which man is only responsible before God and in no way before the state . . . . .                     | 33 |
| III. The virtue of private religion is not above legal justice . . . . .   | 37 |
| IV. The political rights of the human person, or the individualism that destroys the organic and Christian city . . . . .  | 40 |
| 1. The rights of the human person destroy the organic and traditional character of every politically healthy society . . . . .   | 41 |
| 2. The traditional life of the city destroyed by Maritain's personalism . . . . .  | 44 |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| 3. The Maritainian understanding destroys the Christian city founded on the primacy of the Church . . . . .                              | 47  |
| V. The economic rights of the worker and farmer converted into guides of the social life, or socialism of the Maritainian city . . . . . | 50  |
| 1. Prise de conscience in the worker and in the farmer of their right to direct the destiny of the world . . . . .                | 54  |
| 2. Democratic and cooperative organization of the economic life . . . . .  | 56  |
| 3. Suppression of social classes, of salaries, and of all servitude . . . . .  | 59  |
